THE COTTON CROP OF 1922-23.—THIRD REPORT.

[On an average of the five years ending 1918-1921 the area under cotton in the Madras Presidency has represented 10.5 per cent of the total area under sown in India.]

The area sown with cotton up to the end of November 1922 in this Presidency is estimated at 2,280,180 acres as against 1,912,000 acres for the corresponding period of last year, an increase of 19 per cent.

The seasons sown in all the four cotton belts. The heavy rainfall in September resulting with the failure of early dry sowing facilitated sowings of the late crop in the "Coastal" tract, especially in Greater Madras and there was an increase of 25 per cent in area as compared with last year as against the reduction of 10 per cent noted in the last forecast. Sowings of the late crop in the "Northern and Western" belts were normal but an account of the large area under the early crop, the total area sown was 25 per cent above last year. Sowings in the south were delayed till October by the late and insufficient rains but there was increase in the area sown due to high prices.

The area under irrigated Cambodia is estimated at 132,968 acres as against 120,000 acres last year, an increase of about 10 per cent. The increase is largest in the south where a larger area was sown on wet and garden lands on account of the high prices and the restriction of the area sown partly owing to the failure of the north-west monsoon.

3. In the "Coastal" tract the crop prospects are very good on account of the bright weather commencing the rains in September and October. In the "Northern and Western" belts, the harvest of the early crop has commenced but the yield will be low on account of the drought since October, especially in Kallak and Aranthapur. The late crop has also been affected, the crop being failed in parts of Kallak and Aranthapur. In Cambodia the season has been favourable to Cambodia. The cotton crop has had a fair start in the north and a larger area than usual has been sown with improved strains.

The seasonal factor for the Presidency works out to 78 per cent of the average. The total yield is estimated at 249,172 bales against 216,150 bales last year. The crop in the south is, however, young and it is too early to estimate its yield with accuracy.

4. The estimated area and yield under the several varieties are given below:—

Variety.	Area in acres.	Yield (Bales of 400 lb. each).
Irrigated Cambodia	280,000	10
Dry Cambodia	212,150	10
Total Cambodia	492,150	20
Transvaal including Kallak	245,000	74,510
Madras (Upper, etc.)	341,000	15,000
Northern and Western	2,175,000	85,500
Coastal	212,500	61,600
Other	20,000	2,500

4. Figures by District are given in the appended statement.

Area in hundreds of acres (A., 0's being omitted). Yield in hundreds of bushels of soy (B., 0's being omitted).

THE INDIAN CROP OF 1922-23 REPORT.

[On an average of the five years ending 1921-22 the area under indigo in the Madras Presidency has represented 46 per cent of the total area under indigo in British India.]

The area sown with indigo up to the end of November 1922 is estimated at 85,400 acres. This represents a decrease of 12 per cent on the area of 1,04,826 acres estimated for the corresponding period of last year. There has been a general reduction in area in all the important indigo belts, which is most marked in Dindigul, Kurnool, Coimbatore, and Madras. This is due to the fall in the price of indigo dye and the slackness in the export demand. In Coimbatore and Kurnool, indigo is also being replaced by groundnut. The increases in Gudalur, Kistna, and Trichinopoly is only nominal as the last year's figures proved to be underestimates.

The growth of the crop was affected by the locusts which south-west monsoon, especially in Trichinopoly, Kurnool, South Arcot, Coimbatore, and North Arcot, and the usual number of cuttings for the extraction of dye were not taken.

An increasing proportion of the crop is utilized as green manure for wet lands and almost the entire crop in Madras and Trichinopoly and most of the irrigated crop in the Coimbatore and Central districts are so utilized.

There is no reliable information as to the percentage of the crop actually manufactured into dye. But if the whole crop were manufactured into dye, the possible yield would be about 1,100 against 1,700 tons estimated on the corresponding data of last year.

The area yield works out to 85 per cent of the average.

Figures by districts are given in the statement below.

THE FERTILE CRUISE OF 1913-1914—SECOND REPORT.

[On an average of the five years ending 1911-12, the area under paddy in the Madras Province of India represented some 14·5 per cent of the total area under paddy in British India.]

The area sown with paddy up to the end of November 1913 is estimated at 8,531,600 acres. This is about 2 per cent below the estimate of 8,614,600 acres made for the corresponding period of last year.

3. There were large reductions in area in Coimbatore, Virupachem, and Madras owing to the comparative failure of the south-west monsoon and smaller reductions in area in Coimbatore, Virupachem, Tanjore, Ramnad and on the West Coast. A larger amount crop than usual is expected, however, in Coimbatore and Virupachem as most lands are full in re-growing owing to the failure in November. There were increases in the area in the Godavari and Krishna deltas, owing to the abundant, though late, supply of water, and in Chingleput and the Coimbatore owing to the fairly early-onset monsoon.

4. The first crop has been harvested everywhere. Yields have been normal as above in the Coimbatore, Madras, and Tanjore and on the West Coast, but have been reduced to some extent in Virupachem and Tanjore on account of rain at harvest time.

The main crop has been affected by the failure in Coimbatore and Virupachem and by the excessive October-November rains in the Godavari delta. In the Godavari and the related areas of the south, the crop has been affected by the withholding of the north-east monsoon since November. The season has, however, been favourable in the main delta and river valleys. On the West Coast the second crop and the main season crop are also suffering from drought.

The seasonal factor for the Presidency works out to 92 per cent of the average.

4. Figures by districts are given below:—

(Areas in thousands of acres, i.e., 1000 being omitted.)
